

B. Video Taping

You seem to be confused. You sought and obtained an order permitting you to videotape the cross-examinations and now you want me to provide particulars of what I intend to do? Isn't it the other way around? It is my understanding that you intend to have certain cross-examinations videotaped, although you have not told me which ones nor have you provided me with the details nor does it matter because any arrangements you make are at your expense and the videos are treated exactly the same as transcripts.

So to avoid further guessing games, why don't you and all defence counsel, videotape all of them? If you choose not to do so, let me know which ones you are leaving out and I will look into it. I do agree that an entire cross-examination should be included if it is going to be done at all. For those that are not being videotaped by defence counsel, if any, and if so advised, I will have a camcorder/videocam arrangement set up to record and store voice and image onto a hard drive. That way, anyone can have a copy soon thereafter on a DVD.
